Civ. No. 13-0448 (RBK)

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

Plaintiff is a state prisoner currently incarcerated at the New Jersey State Prison in Trenton, New Jersey. He is proceeding pro se with a civil rights complaint filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. On September 12, 2013, this Court screened plaintiff's original complaint and dismissed it without prejudice. Subsequently, on May 8, 2014, this Court screened plaintiff's amended complaint and again dismissed it without prejudice for failure to state a claim.

On August 7, 2014, this Court received plaintiff's application to appoint pro bono counsel and motion to reopen his case. For the foregoing reasons, the motion to reopen this case will be granted. Furthermore, plaintiff's application to appoint pro bono counsel will also be granted. Appointed pro bono counsel will be ordered to file a proposed amended complaint on plaintiff's behalf so that it can be screened pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B) and 1915A.

Plaintiff is pursuing this case in forma pauperis. Indigent persons raising civil rights claims have no absolute right to counsel. See Parham v. Johnson, 126 F.3d 454, 456-57 (3d Cir. 1997). As a threshold matter, there must be some merit in fact or law to the claims the plaintiff is attempting to assert. See Tabron v. Grace, 6 F.3d 147, 155 (3d Cir. 1993). Furthermore, in determining whether to appoint counsel, a court considers the following: (1) the plaintiff's ability to present his or her own case; (2) the complexity of the legal issues; (3) the degree to which factual investigation will be necessary and the ability of the plaintiff to pursue such investigation; (4) the amount a case is likely to turn on credibility determinations; (5) whether the case will require the testimony of expert witnesses; and (6) whether the plaintiff can attain and afford counsel on his own behalf. See id. at 155-56, 157 n.5; see also Cuevas v. United States, 422 F. App'x 142, 144-45 (3d Cir. 2011) (per curiam) (reiterating the Tabron factors). Additionally, the power to grant appointment of counsel lies solely with the discretion of this Court. See id. Appointing counsel may be made at any point during the litigation sua sponte or by granting a party's motion. See id. at 156.

Initially, the Court notes that there may be some merit to plaintiff's claims. For example, in his motion to reopen, plaintiff appears to assert that a surgeon was clearly aware that he was placing a recalled medical device in plaintiff. This could potentially give rise to a deliberate indifference claim under the Eighth Amendment. See Natale v. Camden Cnty. Corr. Facility, 318 F.3d 575, 582 (3d Cir. 2003) (stating that deliberate indifference requires proof that the official "knows of an disregards an excessive risk to inmate health or safety") (citations omitted). Thus, the Tabron factors will be analyzed.

The first Tabron factor requires this Court to analyze the circumstances of the individual plaintiff. See 6 F.3d at 156. "Courts generally should consider the plaintiff's education, literacy, prior work experience, and prior litigation experience. An indigent plaintiff's ability to present his or her case may also depend on factors such as the plaintiff's ability to understand English. See id. (citations omitted). In this case, plaintiff has demonstrated that he is literate and understands English. Furthermore, plaintiff has had access to this Court as demonstrated by his numerous court filings. Accordingly, this factor does not weigh in favor of appointing counsel.

The second Tabron factor requires this Court to examine the complexity of the legal issues in the case. See 6 F.3d at 156. “[W]here the law is not clear, it will often serve the ends of justice to have both sides of a difficult legal issue presented by those trained in legal analysis.” Id. In this case, plaintiff is raising Eighth Amendment deliberate indifference claims arising from the medical care he received. The underlying law for asserting an Eighth Amendment deliberate indifference to a serious medical needs claim is clear. See Montgomery v. Pinchak, 294 F.3d 492, 502 (3d Cir. 2002) (citation omitted). Nevertheless, “[s]implicity in the allegation does not translate into simplicity in the presentation of the claim.” Id. Thus, “[w]hile the ultimate issue may be comprehensible, courts must still look to the proof going towards the ultimate issue and the discovery issues involved.” Parham, 126 F.3d at 459. Here, plaintiff is attempting to raise claims associated with whether those who performed medical procedures on him acted with deliberate indifference to his serious medical needs. Based on the complex medical issues associated with this case, the Court finds that plaintiff’s case presents issues of sufficient complexity so as to warrant the appointment of counsel. See Colston v. Corr. Med. Servs., 256 F. App’x 551, 553 (3d Cir. 2007) (“[C]ivil rights cases alleging deliberate indifference to a prisoner’s medical needs can raise sufficiently complex legal issues to require appointment of counsel.”) (citing Montgomery, 294 F.3d at 502 (citing Parham, 126 F.3d at 459)). Thus, the second Tabron factor weighs in favor of appointing counsel.

The third Tabron factor asks this Court to examine the degree to which factual investigation will be required and the ability of the indigent plaintiff to pursue such investigation. See Tabron, 6 F.3d at 156. “[W]here claims are likely to require extensive discovery and compliance with discovery rules, appointment of counsel may be warranted.” Id. (citing Rayes v. Johnson, 969 F.2d 700, 703 (8th Cir. 1992)). Documents and medical records from different sources may be needed to be produced and examined in this case. Given the nature of plaintiff's deliberate indifference arguments, the Court finds that the third Tabron factor supports appointment of counsel. See Parham, 126 F.3d at 460 (deliberate indifference to medical needs claims "involve[] complex facts and medical records that even most lawyers struggle to comprehend").

The fourth Tabron factor requires the Court to analyze whether the case will turn on credibility determinations and whether the case is "solely a swearing contest." Parham, 126 F.3d at 460. In this case, the Court presumes that plaintiff's medical records could provide the relevant evidence with respect to his claims. Therefore, at this time, the Court finds that the fourth Tabron factor does not necessarily weigh in favor of appointing counsel.

The Court considers whether the case will require expert testimony under the fifth Tabron factor. Expert testimony in this case may ultimately be necessary. See Montgomery, 294 F.3d at 504 ("This Court has recognized the need for expert testimony in proving a claim based on medical injury.") (citing Parham, 126 F.3d at 460). Thus, this factor weighs in favor of appointing counsel.

Finally, the sixth Tabron factor requires this Court to analyze whether plaintiff is able to retain and afford counsel. See 6 F.3d at 156. Plaintiff is proceeding in forma pauperis in this case and there is no indication that plaintiff is able to retain and afford counsel. Consequently, this factor weighs in favor of appointing counsel.

On balance, and having considered the Tabron factors, the Court finds that the appointment of counsel is warranted. Appointed counsel will be ordered to file a proposed amended complaint on plaintiff's behalf so that it can be screened pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B) and 1915A.

Accordingly, IT IS on this 23rd day of January, 2015,

ORDERED that plaintiff's motion to reopen (Dkt. No. 27.) is granted and the Clerk shall reopen this case; and it is further ORDERED that plaintiff's motion for the appointment of pro bono counsel (Dkt. No. 26.) is granted; and it is further

ORDERED that the Clerk shall select an attorney from the Civil Pro Bono Panel; and it is further

ORDERED that the selected appointed attorney from the Civil Pro Bono Panel shall enter a notice of appearance within fourteen (14) days of the date of his appointment; and it is further

ORDERED that the appointed attorney shall file a proposed amended complaint within forty-five (45) days of the date his notice of appearance is filed so that it can be screened pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B) and 1915A; and it is further

ORDERED that no summonses shall be issued by the Clerk upon the filing of the proposed amended complaint as the proposed amended complaint will need to be screened before such summonses are issued; and it is further ORDERED that the Clerk shall serve this Memorandum and Order on plaintiff by regular U.S. Mail.
